systematically, so as to have the tariff bill, or bill, introduced as early as possible to reduce the effects of uncertainty to the minimum.

There are two ways of revising the tariff, one by a general bill, the other by particular bills for particular schedules, or even particular bills for particular items.

The proposed revision of the tariff is to raise revenue, and we should so arrange the rates as to raise the maximum amount of revenue at the same time taking from the pockets of the people the minimum amount of money.

As to the Democratic victory last November, Champ Clark admitted that it was a result of the Republican stay-at-home vote.

"We are really in a state of probation," said he. "The country has concluded to give us another chance to demonstrate our fitness to conduct the government after sixteen years of exclusion from power."

Senator Bailey had not spoken long on the subject of the tariff before it was evident that there is a serious difference of opinion between the two House leaders.

The way to revise a tariff like that, declared Senator Bailey, referring to the Payne-Aldrich law, is to cut it head off and as quickly as you can get to it.

Every schedule in it is bad and I am not willing to take one out and leave another one in. Let us have a tariff that is a tariff, and let us have it done.

Senator Bailey declared that he would not support a tariff bill that would not be a tariff, and that he would not support a tariff bill that would not be a tariff.

justify their confidence. We can only do it by each one individually devoting his time and talents to the public business with an eye single to the common good.

In regard to the enormous expenditures by the Republican Congresses Gov. Harmon said:

"During the sixteen years of Republican control the expenses of the army have increased fourfold, of the navy fivefold, of the sundry civil service fourfold.

Have the real public needs required this multiplication of demands on the people for funds? If so what are those needs and why create the enormous surplus of other branches of the Government has greatly swollen too, until the total expenses have nearly tripled, not counting the Panama Canal, and Congress is appropriating here over one billion a year.

Are these enormous sums really required for the proper conduct of the public business? Are they spent with prudent wisdom and for the benefit of the people, or are they simply returned in public benefits?

When we call attention to this amazing growth in the cost of administration we are asked what expenditures we would cut off or reduce. Give us a look at the books and into the methods of doing business and we will tell you now have the opportunity, let us take it.

Of the proposed Democratic tariff Gov. Harmon said:

"It is a threat, predictions of calamity, we must expect and patiently endure. There may be some temporary disturbance of business, though it ought to be no greater than that caused by the tariff which we are now paying.

But if there be any disturbance it can be met by making reductions with care and prudence and allowing ample time before they take effect. It is a threat, predictions of calamity, we must expect and patiently endure.

SAVED FROM SUNK SUBMARINE

GERMANS RAISE U 3 AFTER MISHAP AT KIEL.

Thirty Men on Board Had Oxygen for 48 Hours. Released a Telephone Buoy and Calmly Awaited Rescue—Erective Work by Vulkan and Her Crane.

Kiel, Jan. 17.—The usual tragedy following the sinking of a submarine with her crew imprisoned below watertight hatches was averted in the harbor here to-day when a salvage ship, equipped for just the purpose to which it was put, raised the German submarine U 3 with her crew of thirty after the sudden filling of the water bunkers had anchored the vessel to the bottom for eight hours.

The remarkable feature of the rescue was that during all the time that the crew were sealed up in the steel skin sixty feet below the surface they were able to communicate with their rescuers through a buoy telephone which was released from the bow of the U 3 a few minutes after she went down.

Although the naval officers of the port refuse to assign a definite reason for the sudden plunge to the bottom, on the ground that to do so would reveal vital secrets concerning the submarine's construction, it is understood that the accidental filling of the water bunkers at a time when the boat was not in condition for a descent made the U 3 drop to the bottom. The submarine disappeared a few minutes before noon, and her plunger was noted almost immediately.

The naval authorities here, that she had enough oxygen for forty-eight hours, but instant preparations for raising the boat were made. When a launch arrived at the spot where the U 3 had last been seen there was a slight disturbance in the yellow water and then a buoy enclosing the receiver of a telephone jumped to the surface directly above the spot where the submarine lay in the mud.

The rescuers were quick to get into communication over the wire with the commander of the vessel. The young ensign, a favor to the commander, immediately reported that his boat was on the bottom and unable to raise itself. He and his men would await salvage operations from the surface.

The repair ship Vulkan, designed as a tender for submarines and equipped with heavy cranes to be used in just such a contingency as that one presented, was brought to the spot. Divers were sent down and loops of heavy chain cable were slipped over the two tapering ends of the steel hull. The commander of the submarine even directed to some extent the placing of the chains through the telephone.

Three hours after the U 3 had disappeared her periscope appeared above the surface. Then each member of her crew except the two officers and the coxswain, equipped with diving helmets and suits, climbed through the still submerged torpedo tube and popped to the surface, there to be picked up by the rescuers.

The three who remained behind told the others that they would stay in the submarine until it was finally salvaged. There is no doubt that the floating of the boat will be completed before to-morrow.

Two of the latest tragedies of the submarine service were marked with special features of horror on the morning of the 17th. The U 3, a new boat of the English Channel by a Calais-Dover mail boat and sank immediately. TWO SHOTS AT BRIAND.

Attempt to Kill French Premier in the Chamber of Deputies.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. PARIS, Jan. 17.—An attempt was made to-day upon the life of Premier Aristide Briand while a debate was being carried on in the Chamber of Deputies. A pistol shot was fired at him from the gallery.

The Premier was not injured. The shot was fired from just above the heads of the Extreme Left party and was closely followed by a second shot. M. Mirman, one of the Ministerial clerks, who was sitting just behind the Premier, received one of the bullets in his leg.

The Chamber was thrown into the utmost confusion and the Deputies dodged hither and there behind and under their desks to escape the bullets. Persons near the man who fired the shots were thrown into a panic in their efforts to get away.

M. Brisson, President of the Chamber, suspended the session and the Chamber was cleared. The man who fired the shots was then arrested. He proved to be a man named Gizoime, a brother of the assistant chief clerk of M. Lafferre, the Minister of Labor. He is unbalanced mentally and was released only recently from an asylum. He used a regular cavalry service revolver.

Gizoime, after he was arrested, said he regretted he had wounded M. Mirman; his wish was to kill Premier Briand. It is believed that he acted in revenge for his removal from a post in the Bayonne law court when the Premier as Minister of Justice discharged him. Some time ago Gizoime fired a shot at the French Consul at San Sebastian.

M. Mirman, the wounded clerk, suffered from an assassin's act once before. It was in 1893, when he was speaking in the Chamber, and was slightly injured when the anarchist Valliant threw a bomb into the House.

The session of the Chamber was resumed in half an hour after the shooting.

Count Romanones in his reply says that the matter will be dealt with by the Congress. In connection with this matter a council of the leading men of the Congressional minorities will be held to-morrow and great interest is being displayed in the result.

Prime Minister Canalejas has appointed the Minister of Finance to study arrangements for a tariff agreement between Spain and Cuba.

HYDE OFFERED TO RESIGN BUT THE MAYOR TOLD HIM TO GO AWAY AND TRY TO GET WELL. Never Mind Newspaper Attacks, Says the Mayor, Who Knows of No Way to Stop Them—Just Let Me Know How the City Money Got Into the Robin Bank.

It came out yesterday that before Chamberlain Hyde went away on his trip to the South he twice offered his resignation to the Mayor. This, with some comments on current events, appears in letters that have passed between Mr. Hyde and Mr. Gaynor. On Monday Mr. Hyde wrote:

MY DEAR MR. MAYOR: Having suffered for some time from a painful malady, commonly known as kidney stones, last summer I was advised to go away and rest for a protracted period. When I spoke to you of the matter and offered to resign my office, if deemed advisable, you readily granted me a leave of absence. Again in November and the physicians having again urged me to go away I renewed my offer to resign, but you thought it unnecessary and granted permission for me to take the necessary time to, if possible, ward off further attacks by a complete rest.

Nothingwithstanding this I learn that after I had been away for a short time certain newspapers started the false statement that I went away to avoid being subpoenaed by a legislative committee. As you know, there was no ground for that statement. I was here in the city and daily at my office for three months and the committee was in session and was never subpoenaed or requested to go before the committee. There was no reason why I should go before the committee. The chairman of the committee informed me that I was not to be subpoenaed and the chief counsel to the committee publicly announced that I was not to be subpoenaed. Nevertheless, these certain newspapers took advantage of my absence to make the false statement which I have mentioned, and it seems to have been copied by some respectable newspapers.

A certain person, whom those who know him best would not believe under oath, had gone before the committee and testified that another person told him that some other gentleman, of whom I was one, had set down to dinner at Belmont's and raised $50,000 to oppose race-track legislation at Albany. I certainly never had the slightest inclination to contradict such a piece of untraceable hearsay as that.

Although slight recoveries indicated that I was not yet to be free from the malady, immediately upon hearing of the bank failures I returned to my desk. Very truly yours, CHAMBERLAIN HYDE, Chamberlain

The Mayor replied yesterday: DEAR MR. HYDE: Your letter is at hand. I am not surprised that you feel hurt at the way you have been treated by some newspapers. But let us not be affected
